

Miss Sengstak Is Bride Of J. J. Baird, Edinburgh

Wedding Solemnized At Home of Bride's Parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Sengstak, Before Altar of Palms and Ferns—Many Washingtonians Return.

A pretty wedding took place today at 1 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Sengstak, in Woodley road, when their daughter, Miss Martha A. Sengstak, was married to John James Baird, of Edinburgh, Scotland.

The ceremony, at which the Rev. Wallace Radcliffe, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, officiated, was attended only by relatives and a few close friends.

The bride stood before an improvised altar of palms and ferns, and the entire lower floor of the house was effectively embellished with Southern amplex, palms, and white roses. An orchestra played the wedding music for the entrance of the bride party, and during the ceremony.

Miss Sengstak, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a bridal gown of soft ivory satin, trimmed with duchesse and rose point lace. Her bridal veil was held in place with a wreath of orange blossoms, and the bride's bouquet was a shower of white orchids and lilies of the valley. Her only ornaments were pearl and diamond ear rings, one of the bridegroom's gifts.

Mrs. Gabriella Sengstak Blount, sister of the bride, as the matron of honor, wore a modish gown of coral pink marquisette trimmed with touches of gold with a large black picture hat with a band of gold cloth and tiny rosebuds.

Allen Clarke, of England, acted as best man for Mr. Baird. A wedding breakfast followed immediately after the ceremony.

Mrs. Sengstak, mother of the bride, wore a handsome gown of mauve marquisette trimmed with touches of silver, and a corsage bouquet of mauve orchids. Little Miss Dorothea Blount, niece of the bride, wore a dainty frock of white with pink ribbons.

Mr. and Mrs. Baird left Washington shortly after the wedding breakfast for their bridal trip, and their future home in Cincinnati. Mrs. Baird wore for traveling a tailored suit of Scotch tweed and a blue velvet hat.

They will be at home temporarily at the Cincinnati Country Club.

RAM'S HORN BLOWN AT THE SYNAGOGUE

Celebration of Jewish New Year Closes With Shofar Service.

A triumvirate of features in the singing of the Shofar service, the symbolic blowing of the ram's horn, and a sermon by Rabbi Simon brought to a close in the Eighth Street Temple today the Jewish observance of Rosh Hashana, or New Year.

The auditorium of the temple was well filled, and the music to the Shofar service, which was written recently by Edward J. Stark, and sung for the first time in Washington, was particularly impressive.

While the big number of Stark's New Year service, "Adon Olon," was rendered last night, there were several good selections in the second part, which was given this morning, particularly a duet, entitled "God Is My Strong Salvation," which was sung by John Nolan and Miss Irma Stern.

The quartet which sang the service comprised Mr. Nolan, Miss Stern, contralto, Mrs. Nellie Stein, soprano, and Harry Stevens, tenor. Rabbi Simon, preaching on the theme, "Make Room," his plea was in the interest of the younger generation. He declared that the synagogue must meet the physical and social needs of the boys and girls if it would keep them under its influence.

Last night Rabbi Simon's topic was "Over the Hills and Far Away." His discourse pointed out that New Year Day is the protest of the Jew against the materialism and atheism of the world.

The blowing of the ram's horn at this morning's Shofar service is symbolized from the Book of Numbers. This service was conducted by Rabbi Louis Stern.

TIPS TO AMERICANS ASTOUND LONDONER

Former Lord Mayor Says the Habit Is Continuous.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Sir William Trevelyan, formerly lord mayor of London, who has been in this country and Canada for two weeks, is wondering today what would happen to him if he offered a "tuppence" to an American bellboy for a tip.

"Why, I can live for a pound a day in a first-class London hotel; but it costs two pounds a day in America. Still, I must admit, you set very good value for your money. But your tips are continuous."

The former lord mayor is sorry he didn't come to America to live some forty years ago.

"By this time," he said, "I might have been a Tuppence boss for the government, who seem to live for nothing but making money. I would, perhaps, do the same thing if I were forty years younger. Here money making seems to be taken up as a man in any other part of the world would take up some sort of sport—like fox hunting. When you have your fox the sport is over."

BEGIN MARRIED LIFE WITH PUBLIC FUN

Salvation Army Couple Receive Proceeds of An Entertainment.

Paul Jones, of Reading, Pa., and his bride, who was formerly Eva Duke, of Herndon, Va., are today starting married life with the nucleus of a bank account, owing to the fact that the public paid 10 cents admission to the Salvation Army Hall last night to see them married.

Indeed, as much as 25 cents was paid at the door by those persons who occupied reserved seats.

An extensive program of entertainment had been planned for the evening, and on this program the wedding of the two young Salvation Army workers was only one of several numbers. Admission was charged to the entertainment, and the proceeds of the evening to be divided between paying the expenses of the bride and bridegroom, as is usually done in Salvation Army ranks.

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT SLIP.
This Place Is Filled With Floating Garbage, With An Open Closet Dumping Filth Into the Water at All Hours.

UNCLE SAM usually takes pretty good care of his property, and the United States army is generally credited with being a mighty fine housekeeper. Here is a view of the slip owned and used by the Government, where the little "transport," the General Swartwout lies, between trips to Fort Washington and Fort Hunt.

The Swartwout carries officers and men, as well as supplies, between the city and the two forts. Garbage—decayed melon rinds, corn shucks, potato peelings, as well as other flotsam immeasurably worse, float about in the water of the slip; an old, stove-in skiff, half in and half out of the water, lies rotting at one side of the slip, where the wall has fallen in from sheer decay. The good buildings near the head of the slip only emphasize the disreputableness of the ramshackle shanties that lie directly in view across the Water street end.

Congress was asked last year for legislation—and for funds—which would permit the destruction of this, and a score or more equally unsightly and unsanitary structures along the water front, but the request was denied. The Harbor Committee intends to renew its campaign at as early a date as possible after the new Congress meets this winter, and the members of the committee are hopeful that their recommendations will be more cordially received this year than was the case a year ago. Since the first report of the committee was filed the rats have increased amazingly along the water front, and present conditions indicate possibilities of an outbreak of bubonic plague.

FIGHT TO ENFORCE PROHIBITION LAW

North Carolina Finds Drug Stores and Near-Beer Mockeries to Statute.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 4.—A more strenuous effort is to be made hereafter to apprehend "blind tigers," and other violators of the prohibition laws of the city and State.

At a meeting of the city executive board, it was stated by members that several drug stores were the worst menace to the prohibition laws, whisky being dealt out over the counters every day in the week.

In this State "near-beer" is one of the worst menaces of the prohibition law, but, with all the violations, conditions are incomparably better than when saloons were legalized, and it is not to be doubted if the issue was voted upon again prohibition would carry by 40,000 majority, as it did before.

STORE OBSERVING 15TH ANNIVERSARY

Goldenberg's Growth From Small Place to Present Mammoth Home.

Fifteen years ago today a small store, numbering twelve employees, hung out its modest sign on Seventh street, and adopted a policy of square dealing and conscientious carrying to the discrimination of the buying public, by which its management resolved to rise or fall.

This week the great department store of M. Goldenberg, occupying a block on Seventh street, with its fall and winter stock utilizing every inch of more than 200,000 feet of floor space, and requiring the services of nearly 1,000 men and women, is celebrating its fifteenth anniversary.

Today, Goldenberg's fifteenth anniversary, is a holiday for its hundreds of faithful employees, and every one connected with the great establishment is enjoying a day of rest.

Tomorrow, however, and during the remainder of the week, an anniversary celebration will begin which has been planned especially for the benefit and pleasure of the shopping public.

A Week of Bargains.
Desiring to show its appreciation of the patronage and support of this public, Goldenberg's has decided to offer a week of unparalleled bargains in every department, and the great anniversary sale will be one of the most notable of the year.

For more than a decade, the store has been identified with the commercial progress of Washington. First opening its doors with a stock of small pretensions, the fair and square methods of the little establishment were fifteen years ago almost its only method of advertising. It soon gained for itself the name of "The Dependable Store," and as its size and patronage increased, the name was not lost through any slackening of high ideals, or in any effort to increase its earnings at the expense of its standards of excellence.

Within a brief time after its opening, it was found necessary by the management to increase the size of the store, and a second building was purchased.

Now Occupies Fourteen Buildings.
Today, after fifteen years of steady growth and development, Goldenberg's occupies fourteen buildings, an average addition of one new building for nearly every twelvemonth.

There are more than three score departments in the store, these departments housing a stock unequalled in its extensiveness and completeness. The small order department alone is a significant feature, with customers as far away as Hawaii, Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippine Islands.

The standards of honest efficiency and excellence which Goldenberg's has preserved for the fifteen years of its existence, have done much toward setting the standard of commercial life for Washington. The steady and legitimate growth of the firm from an unpretentious beginning to a mammoth concern, embracing scores of departments, and employing hundreds of men and women, is identical with the progress of the Capital City and is a part of its constructive success.

Photography has been called in to play a part in the educational system now being developed by the Pennsylvania anthracite coal operators. It is expected that a series of photographs will be remarkably effective in showing the proper methods of mining to the foreign workers, most of whom knew nothing of mining before they came to this country.

The anthracite committee of the Y. M. C. A. is carrying its educational work into practically every section of the anthracite fields. The operators are giving support in the shape of cash contributions.

The suggestion to use photographs came from Col. R. A. Phillips, a big coal company superintendent. The pictures are to be thrown on screens at the meetings of the mining institutes which the Y. M. C. A. has established at the various centers.

MESS BOY ACCUSED OF $21,000 ROBBERY

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 4.—T. Buckley, mess boy of the steamer City of Seattle, is under arrest on the charge of being a party to the theft of $21,000 in gold bullion and United States and Canadian bank notes, stolen from the mail room of the steamer.

A search revealed a number of bank notes wrapped around the boy's legs. Postoffice inspectors assert that three men were in the conspiracy, and are making a search of the vessel for the gold, which they believe has not been taken ashore.
